- Standard Delivery Windows: Final delivery timelines fluctuate depending on the geographical location and PIN-code mapping of the Customer or Direct Seller. The baseline transit window across India is estimated between 2 to 7 business days.
- Logistical Restraints: Final delivery operations are bound by the operating schedules of external logistical partners and generally do not occur on Sundays or major national and gazetted holidays.

4. LEGAL RISK ALLOCATION, TITLES, AND VERIFICATION

4.1. Risk in Transit and Statutory Warranties

Notwithstanding the deployment of independent third-party logistics service providers, _____ (company name) retains the absolute risk of any damage, loss, or physical deterioration of products during transit. The risk of loss transfers to the buyer only upon full completion of physical delivery.

_____ (company name) explicitly represents and warrants that all delivered products are non-faulty, structurally pristine, and exactly match the descriptions, technical specifications, and legal metrology parameters advertised on the web portal.

4.2. Address Validation and Serviceability

Prior to processing payments, the buyer's shipping address and associated Postal Index Number (PIN Code) are automatically verified against the Company's serviceability database. If a designated region is unserviceable due to carrier constraints, the Customer or Direct Seller must provide an alternative, valid shipping address to facilitate successful delivery.

4.3. Time as a Non-Essential Element

While _____ - _____ (company name) coordinates with premium carriers to ensure swift delivery, all published dispatch and transit windows are good-faith estimates.

Consequently, time is not the essence of the bi-partite commercial contract for purchase and sale between the buyer and _____ (company name) Furthermore, no product shall be dispatched or released for delivery until the Company has verified receipt of full and final payment.

4.4. Transfer of Title

The legal title, ownership interests, and proprietary rights in the purchased products pass directly to the Direct Seller or Customer only upon the occurrence of two concurrent events: (1) The successful physical delivery of the consignment; and (2) The receipt of full and unencumbered payment by the Company.

5. RECEIPT, ACCEPTANCE, AND REFUSAL PROTOCOLS

5.1. Inspection and Deemed Acceptance

Before acknowledging receipt of any delivery, the Customer or Direct Seller must reasonably inspect the external packaging to ensure it is untampered and undamaged.

- Satisfactory Acknowledgment: Affixing a signature on the delivery note or carrier's digital acknowledgment device constitutes formal confirmation that the consignment was received in an outwardly satisfactory condition. Buyers are directed to refuse signature if visible transit damage or severe product shortages are detected.
- Latent Defects and Shortages: Hidden damages or discrepancies discovered after the departure of the carrier must be formally reported to _____(company name) customer support within twenty-four (24) hours of receipt.
- Waiver of Claims: Failure to notify _____ -_(company name) of any delivery discrepancy or damage within the strict twenty-four (24) hour window operates as a legal waiver. Upon expiration of this period, the consignment is legally deemed accepted, canceling the buyer's right to request corrections, replacements, or administrative adjustments.

5.2. Unjustified Non-Acceptance and Right to Recovery

A buyer is legally bound to accept delivery of products ordered by them that are presented in a merchantable, deliverable state. If a Customer or Direct Seller neglects or refuses to take delivery without a valid legal reason, they shall be liable to _____ -_(company name) for all consequential losses, including two-way logistics and storage fees.

In such cases of non-acceptance, _____(company name) may contact the buyer to assess the underlying reasons for refusal. The final decision regarding whether to attempt redelivery or initiate a partial refund (subject to administrative deductions) remains within the absolute discretion of _____ -_(company name) and shall be governed by the corporate Refund Policy.
